FLOW MEASUREMENT FOR DITCH COMPANIES

Pre-convention Workshop

Wednesday, February 20

9 a.m. - 4 p.m.

Flow Measurement is DARCA's pre-convention workshop. The workshop is essential for ditch company personnel interested in learning about the latest technologies of measuring, recording, and reporting water flows in canals and for on-farm delivery applications. The workshop begins with flow measurement fundamentals: the common units of measurement and the operational benefits of flow measurement. Historical measurement devices, including the Parshall flume, and basic operation of all critical flow measurement devices and details on measurement accuracy are on the agenda.

The course covers the design and installation of long-throated (Replogle) flumes and broad-crested weirs. These types of flumes have several advantages over the Parshall, They can be custom designed to the needs of the user, cost less to construct, and are more accurate. Participants are invited to bring their laptop computers to class. WinFlume, a powerful, easy to use software program will be provided. The program allows users to perform a rating analysis on an existing flume or a new flume can be designed. The participants will be instructed in the use of the software and will be able to solve exercises in the afternoon session of the class.

Flow meters for piped systems will be presented as well.

Recording devices of all types will be described and Supervisory Control and Data Acquisition, better known as SCADA, will be discussed and presented for flow recording and reporting. These technologies can provide monitoring and control of canal operations from a centralized location. Data and information, such as canal flows and reservoir storage data, can be easily posted to the canal company's Web site for management and shareholder access.

DARCA member Stephen Smith with Aqua Engineering, Inc. will organize and lead the workshop. Other presenters will be engineers from other DARCA member companies and Tony Wahl from the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation Hydraulics Laboratory in Denver.

Where: Fort Garland Museum,
Fort Garland, Colorado
29477 Hwy. 159 (south of Hwy 160)
(719) 379-3512

Lunch will be provided: Posole, cheese enchiladas, frijoles, arroz, lettuce, tomatoes, & tortillas. Dessert will be: 'sopa', a bread pudding also known as capirotada. Morning and afternoon refreshments and snacks are also included.

The Menu for the DARCA Conference Experience centuries-old traditional cultural foods. An aromatic feast pleasing the palate, as we will use heirloom foods in the local culinary delicacies - grown by local acequia farmers & harvested from the Costilla County villages and "La Sierra." Foods are grown and raised naturally without pesticides, hormones and antibiotics.

Snacks will include biscochitos, empanaditas, and other homemade pastries indigenous to our area.

Refreshments will feature water from the local area; teas made from locally harvested plants; chocolate mexicano (deliciously hot spiced chocolate); atole (blue corn drink w/ vanilla & honey). Raven's Brew coffee, dedicated to quality, suitability and culture will be served.

Local vendors will make available preserves, organic baking mixes, organic flour, arts, crafts, wildcraft items and more. Vendors will be selling at the convention site & at the San Luis Museum & Cultural Center. We appreciate your support of our local economy. Take home some history and flavor from the oldest town in Colorado.
